The Damage Caused by a Criminal Record

Longer-Term Consequences

As a result of these various consequences, many individuals with a criminal record history and their families suffer from instability and intergenerational poverty, which can trap them in uncertain and unsafe situations.

An Initiative to Expand Access to Record Clearing

Informed by research ranking potential anti-poverty interventions by their strategic impact and feasibility, United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey, in partnership with the City of Philadelphia, launched The Promise, an innovative public-private partnership dedicated to increasing economic mobility for Philadelphians.

IN PARTNERSHIP WITH

City of Philadelphia

In May 2022, The Promise launched The Jobs & Opportunities Challenge, which seeks to remove barriers to quality employment by supporting partnerships among 18 community-based organizations and three legal organizations to provide access to free legal services aimed at clearing criminal records via sealing, expungement, and pardon.

Partnering Legal Organizations

PHILADELPHIA
LAWYERS for SOCIAL EQUITY

As part of this initiative, local organizations are hosting community events that include free legal clinics, where community members meet individually with legal representatives to assess their record clearing eligibility and obtain support and/or representation.

In this report, we summarize available record clearing options and information about the record clearing clinics that were held in the initiative's first year, including the number of individuals who attended, clinic locations, and some background information about attendees.

Summary of Record Clearing Options in Pennsylvania

Pennsylvania Courts

Sealing

Description

Prevents the public from accessing criminal records.

Process

Often automatic; otherwise, file a court petition and pay a fee (unless waived for indigency).
 ≈ 12-18 months

Eligibility

- Cannot seal certain serious misdemeanor convictions or any felony convictions.
- Cannot seal misdemeanor convictions from the past 10 years.
- Cannot seal cases for those who owe restitution.

Pennsylvania Courts

Expungement

Judicial order permanently erases a criminal record from state databases.

File a court petition and pay a fee (unless waived for indigency).
 ≈ 18-26 months

- Largely, only for charges not resulting in conviction.

Eligible convictions include:

- Summary convictions for those with no additional arrest or conviction in past 5 years.
- If age 70+ and has no arrest or conviction in past 10 years.

Pennsylvania Pardon Board

Pardon

Governor's order "forgives" a criminal record.

Submit comprehensive application, complete interviews, and attend a Board hearing. Requires post-pardon expungement.
 ≈ 4-5 years

- Not eligible if currently under court supervision.
- Must pay court fines and costs before pardon recommendation to Governor.
- Not an official regulation, but individuals with a more distant history of system involvement tend to have greater success obtaining a pardon.

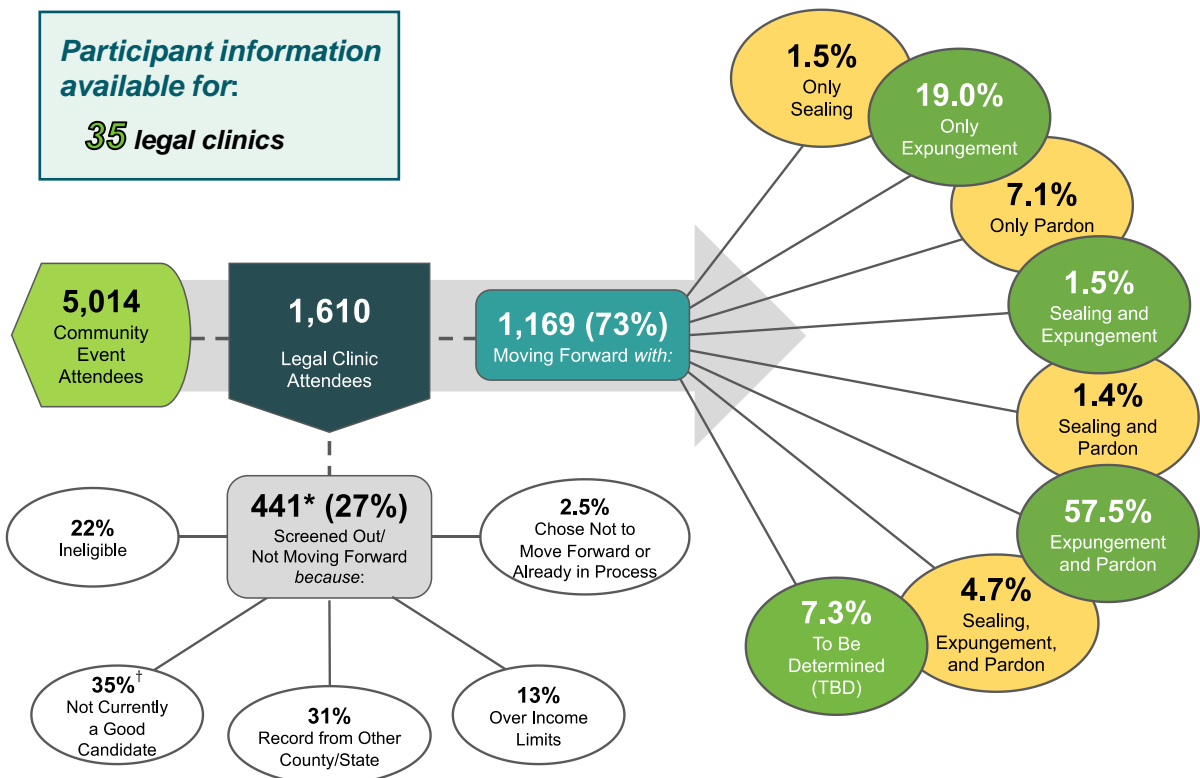

Philadelphia Record Clearing Initiative

To facilitate individuals taking advantage of record clearing opportunities offered by Pennsylvania's executive and judicial branches, The Promise and United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey are supporting multiple community events with record clearing clinics across Philadelphia, staffed by representatives from local legal organizations and hosted by community-based organizations across the city. Participation data are continually being gathered as clinics are held.

As of July 17, 2023, 5,014 participants attended 35 community events. This summary includes data currently available from 35 legal clinics held at community events and will be updated as additional data are available.

Participant information available for:

35 legal clinics

* Some individuals' cases did not move forward for multiple reasons; thus, the sum of percentages across reasons exceeds 100%.

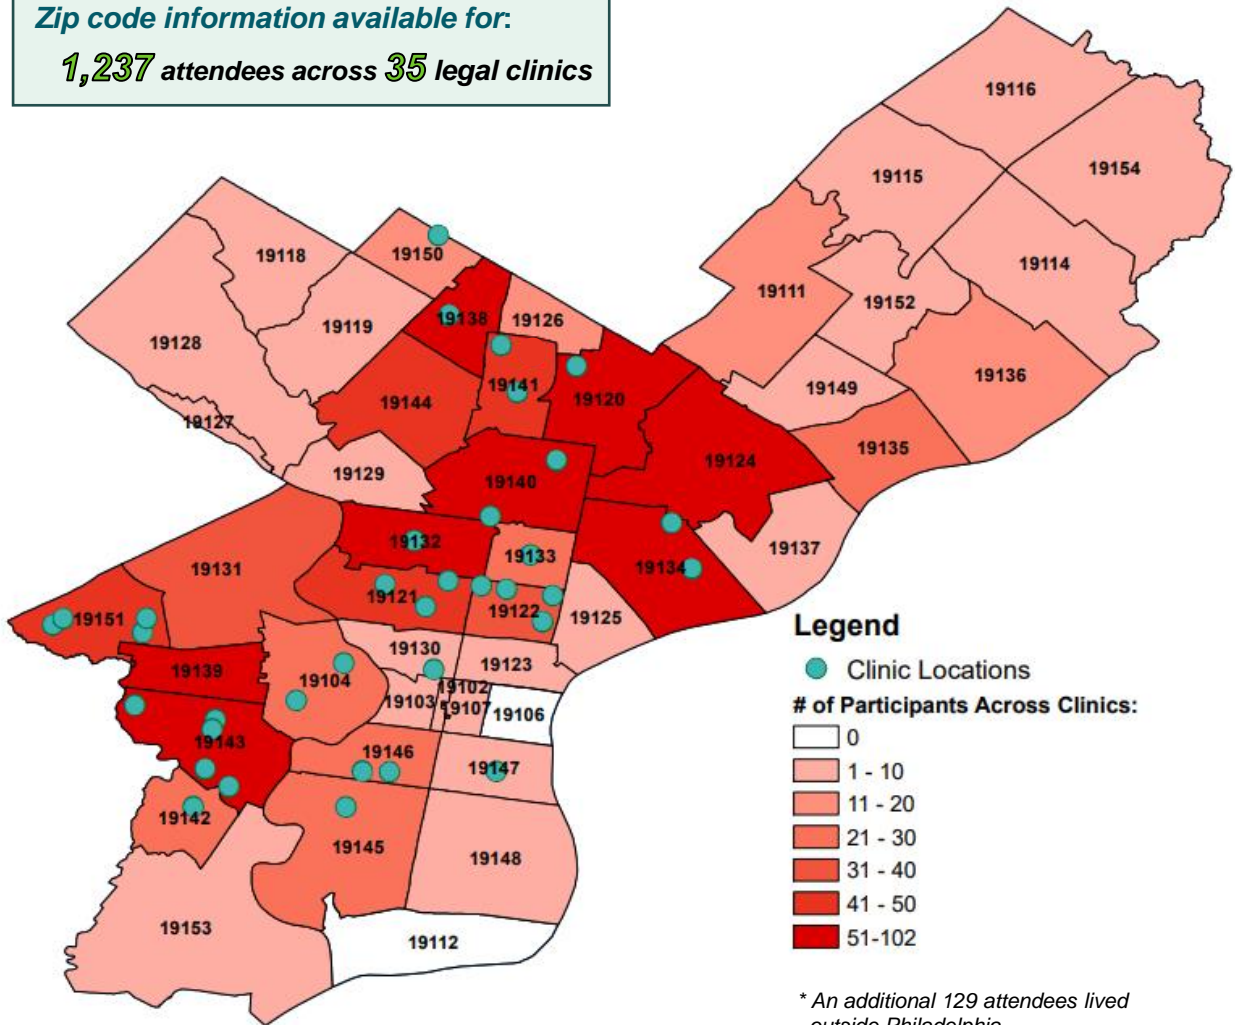

† Individuals might be considered "not currently a good candidate" for multiple reasons, such as having a recent or very serious case. Legal organizations then typically recommend waiting before pursuing record clearing options.

Nearly 75% of event attendees who met with legal representatives are moving forward with some form of record clearing, with most seeking to both expunge and pardon their records.

Legal Clinic Attendance across Philadelphia as of July 17, 2023

Zip code information available for:

1,237 attendees across 35 legal clinics

Characteristics of Legal Clinic Attendees*

*These data were available for 1,123 attendees

Demographics

The vast majority (68%) of clinic attendees were men; most attendees identified as Black/African American (78%)

Because individuals could report multiple racial/ethnic identities, the sum exceeds 100%

Time Range of Arrest Records

Attendees' first recorded arrests dated back to 1963; for some individuals, even their most recent arrest dated back more than 50 years.

Types of Charges

More than half of clinic attendees had at least one misdemeanor conviction on their record, and about half had at least one felony conviction.

Moving Forward: The Evaluation Process

Partnering with The Promise and The Knowledge Center at the United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey, the Juvenile Justice Research and Reform (JJR&R) Lab at Drexel University is conducting an evaluation of the ongoing record clearing initiative.

At every legal clinic, JJR&R Lab members recruit attendees pursuing record clearing, asking them to complete surveys over the course of two years following the clinic. These surveys gauge the impact of having a criminal record (e.g., on employment, housing, system involvement, self-esteem) and will assess participants' experiences as they move through the record clearing process.

In addition to self-report information, the JJR&R Lab will compare employment and criminal legal system outcomes of individuals participating in record clearing clinics with non-participants who have similar legal histories by obtaining and examining administrative data from publicly available databases operated by the Administrative Office of Pennsylvania Courts and the federal Criminal Justice Administrative Records System.
