The Damage Caused by a Criminal Record

Longer-Term Consequences

As a result of these various consequences, many individuals with a criminal record history and their families suffer from instability and intergenerational poverty, which can trap them in uncertain and unsafe situations.

An Initiative to Expand Access to Record Clearing

Informed by research ranking potential anti-poverty interventions by their strategic impact and feasibility, United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey, in partnership with the City of Philadelphia, launched The Promise, an innovative public-private partnership dedicated to increasing economic mobility for Philadelphians.

IN PARTNERSHIP WITH

In May 2022, The Promise launched The Jobs & Opportunities Challenge, which sought to remove barriers to quality employment by supporting partnerships among 24 community-based organizations and three legal organizations to provide access to free legal services aimed at clearing criminal records via sealing, expungement, and pardon.

SOCIAL EQUITY

As part of this initiative, local organizations hosted community events that include free legal clinics, where community members met individually with legal representatives to assess their record clearing eligibility and obtain support and/or representation.

In this report, we summarize record clearing options and available information about the record clearing clinics that were held in the initiative's first three years, including the number of individuals who attended associated clinics, clinic locations, and some background information about attendees.

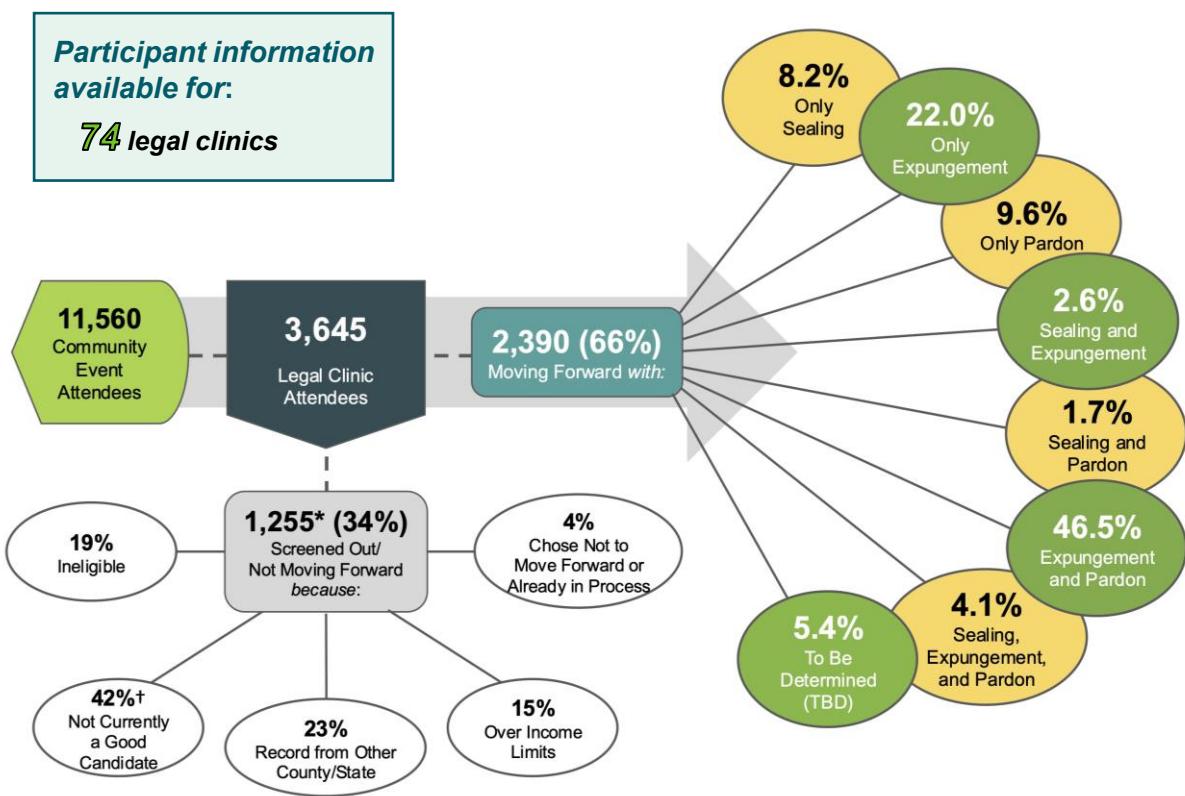

Summary of Record Clearing Options in Pennsylvania

Description	Process	Eligibility
Pennsylvania Courts 	Often automatic; otherwise, file a court petition and pay a fee (unless waived for indigency). $\approx 12\text{-}18 \text{ months}$	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Cannot seal certain serious misdemeanor convictions or any felony convictions.Cannot seal misdemeanor convictions from the past 10 years.Cannot seal cases for those who owe restitution.
Pennsylvania Courts 	Judicial order permanently erases a criminal record from state databases.	Eligible convictions include: <ul style="list-style-type: none">Largely, only for charges not resulting in conviction.Summary convictions for those with no additional arrest or conviction in past 5 years.If age 70+ and has no arrest or conviction in past 10 years.
Pennsylvania Pardon Board 	Governor's order “forgives” a criminal record.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Not eligible if currently under court supervision.Must pay court fines and costs before pardon recommendation to Governor.Not an official regulation, but individuals with a more distant history of system involvement tend to have greater success obtaining a pardon.

Philadelphia Record Clearing Initiative

To facilitate individuals taking advantage of record clearing opportunities offered by Pennsylvania's executive and judicial branches, The Promise and United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey supported multiple community events with record clearing clinics across Philadelphia, staffed by representatives from local legal organizations and hosted by community-based organizations across the city.

As of June 14, 2025, 76 clinic events had been held as part of this initiative; overall attendance information was available for 74 clinic events, which 11,560 people attended. The summary below includes data from 74 legal clinics embedded within those community events.

* Some individuals' cases did not move forward for multiple reasons; thus, the sum of percentages across reasons exceeds 100%.

† Individuals might be considered "not currently a good candidate" for multiple reasons, such as having a recent or very serious case. Legal organizations then typically recommended waiting before pursuing record clearing options.

Nearly 70% of event attendees who met with legal representatives moved forward with some form of record clearing, with most seeking to both expunge and pardon their records.

Legal Clinic Attendance Across Philadelphia During the 3-Year Initiative

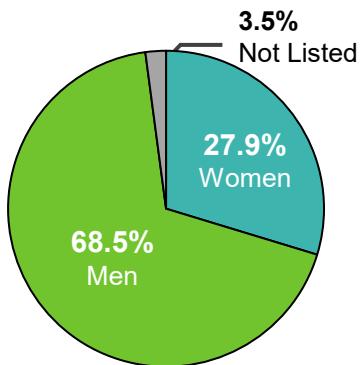

Zip code information available for:
2,453 attendees across 74 legal clinics

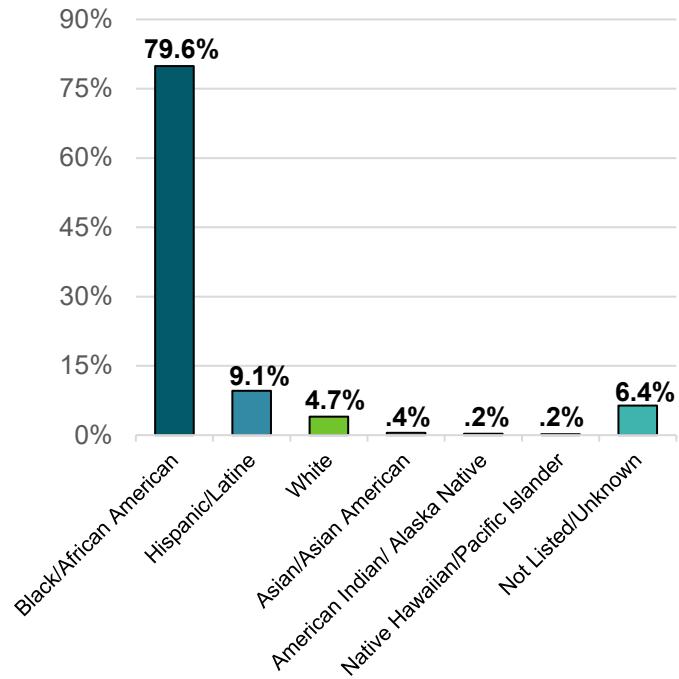

Characteristics of Legal Clinic Attendees

Demographics

Data available for 2,390 attendees

The majority (69%) of clinic attendees were men; most attendees identified as Black/African American (80%)

Because individuals could report multiple racial/ethnic identities, the sum exceeds 100%

Time Range of Arrest Records

Data available for 2,296 attendees

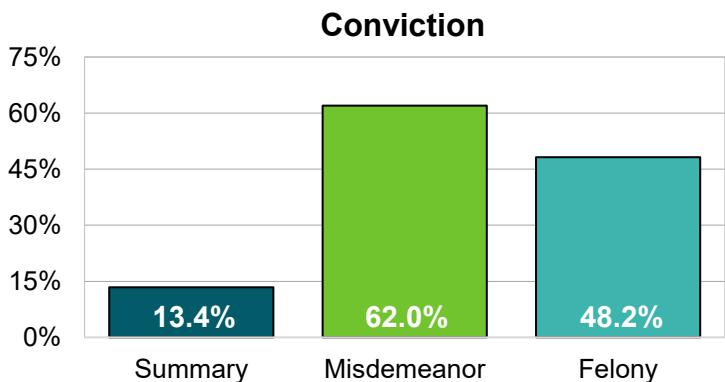

Attendees' first recorded arrests dated back to 1963; for some individuals, even their most recent arrest dated back more than 50 years.

Types of Convictions

Data available for 2,296 attendees

More than half of clinic attendees had at least one misdemeanor conviction on their record, and about half had at least one felony conviction.

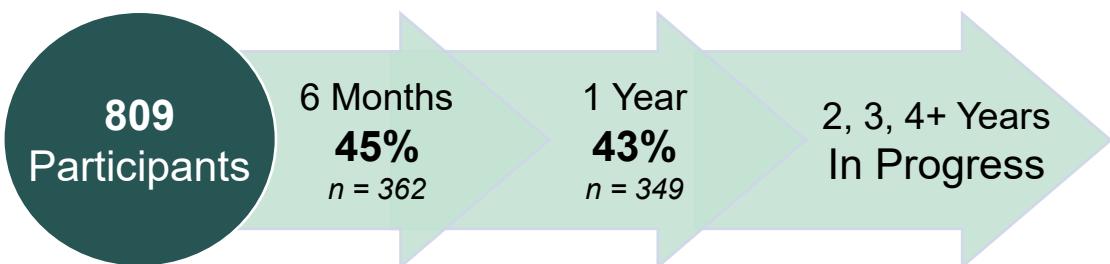

Moving Forward: The Evaluation Process

Partnering with The Promise and United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey, the Juvenile Justice Research and Reform (JJR&R) Lab at Drexel University is conducting an evaluation of this record clearing initiative.

At legal clinics held during the first 26 months of this initiative, JJR&R Lab members recruited attendees pursuing record clearing, asking them to complete surveys over the course of several years (i.e., up to 5 years) following their clinic attendance. These surveys gauge the impact of having a criminal record (e.g., on employment, housing, system involvement, self-esteem) and assess participants' experiences as they move through the record clearing process.

In addition to self-report information, the JJR&R Lab is comparing employment and criminal legal system outcomes of individuals participating in record clearing clinics with non-participants who have similar legal histories by obtaining and examining administrative data from publicly available databases operated by the Administrative Office of Pennsylvania Courts and the federal Criminal Justice Administrative Records System.

Follow-Up Survey Completion

A total of 809 clinic attendees were recruited for the study and completed a baseline survey on their original clinic date. Participants were then asked to complete a follow-up survey 6 months after their original clinic date, and then annually from 1 year after their original clinic date, up to 5 years after their initial clinic date. Study participants are currently in the 2- and 3-year follow-up period. The 4-year follow up period will begin in 2026, and the 5-year follow-up period will begin in 2027.
